The Caspar David Friedrich Society annually awards the Caspar David Friedrich Prize, which was first presented in 2001. This art prize is awarded for works that address current questions regarding the relationship between humans, nature, and art, and that have an intellectual connection to the works of Caspar David Friedrich. The prize is awarded for works in the field of visual arts. All types and media of images can be submitted. Group works will not be considered. The prize, established by the society, is worth 2,500 euros, a series of postcards, and an exhibition in Greifswald.

Eligible to participate are art students from the places and institutions where Caspar David Friedrich himself studied or worked — the University of Greifswald, the Royal Danish Academy of Fine Arts in Copenhagen, and the Academy of Fine Arts in Dresden.

The deadline for submitting entries is September 15, 2026. The application period starts on June 15, 2026.

Further information and application documents can be found at www.caspar-david-friedrich-gesellschaft.de

Caspar-David-Friedrich-Selskabet uddeler årligt Caspar-David-Friedrich-Prisen. Prisen blev første gang uddelt i 2001. Caspar-David-Friedrich-Prisen tildeles for arbejder, som med aktuelle problemstillinger behandler forholdet mellem menneske, natur og kunst og har relation til og er beslægtet med Caspar-David-Friedrichs værk. Prisen tildeles for arbejder indenfor området bildende kunst. Der kan indsendes billeder repræsenterende alle kunstretninger af enhver slags og fra alle medier. Gruppearbejder kan ikke komme i betragtning. Den af selskabet indstiftede pris andrager 2.500 Euro.

Berettiget til at deltage er kunststuderende fra uddannelsesinstitutioner i de byer, hvor Caspar David Friedrich selv studerede eller var virksom – Universitetet i Greifswald, Det Kgl. Kunstakademi i København og Akademie der Künste i Dresden.

Indsendelsesfrist for at deltage i konkurrencen er hvert år den 15. september 2026. Ansøgningsperioden starter den 15. juni 2026.
